I. O. O. F. Will Enlarge their Block.

Old Fellows to Have a New Lodge Room.

An important meeting of the Odd Fellows was held, Tuesday evening. There has been some talk for some little time of building upper stories to their building on Main St., and at this meeting it was decided to build three more stories providing they could make satisfactory leases with the County of Oxford for a court room for the Norway Municipal Court and the Maine Tel. & Tel. Co. for a public Telephone and Telegraph office.

First Premium to Norway Apples.

The National Horticultural Congress has recently closed a successful exhibition at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and for family orcharding the district of Maine was awarded first premium.

F. T. True, treasurer of that city for many years past and formerly a Norway boy, sent to his brother, Jas. C. True, who selected and sent him several varieties of Norway grown apples and got four first, one second and two third premiums in the classes entered.

George A. Cole and A. L. Cook raised the Macintosh Red; A. A. Herrick and C. A. Cole, the Gravenstein; Harry Greenleaf, Roxbury Russetts, and G. A. Cole the Tolman Sweets. These were awarded first premium.

Oliver Upton's Seek-no-further got second premium and Strawberry apple from A. A. Herrick's orchard got third as did the Northern Spys from the orchard of Oscar Cox.

City Treasurer True was much pleased that apples raised in his native town "down in Maine" fared so well in the National Exhibition.

Christmas Sale.

The Universalist Society will give a Christmas sale at Concert Hall, Dec. 1st and 2nd. The sale will begin at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and continue afternoon and evening of both days.

Big Shipment of Deer to Norway.

Four Norway hunters went up river about a week ago. F. T. Thurston hunted in the vicinity of Krroll and got two bucks, one of which had a 10 point head. W. F. Young, F. H. Hurd and Levi Richardson hunted the vicinity of Umbagog Lake and each of them got two buck deer and good ones with perfect heads.

They returned home Monday, bringing the game with them. Probably the eight deer weigh the most of any that was ever brought into town.

Jennie Baker was in Boston last week on business.

Mrs. Carl Leighton went to Lowell, Mass., Wednesday, and will spend Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. Maybelle Collins. Mr. and Mrs. Leighton will make their home in Lowell.

Col. M. W. Sampson has returned from Philadelphia. He was in the Quaker City and adjacent woodlots four weeks and "went through Baltimore and on to Washington."

He reports Dr. Thompson to be busy and somewhat interested in autos, and that Mrs. Charles G. Blake was visiting relatives in Nebraska while he was at the city. He did not see her, and Belle Whitcomb was in Orono, Wis., and that her Philadelphia residence was closed.

C. W. Chick went to Buckfield, Sunday, and brought his aunt, Mrs. H. L. Damon, home with him to spend the winter.

Mrs. Damon to her first ride in an auto. She has been to Europe several times and enjoyed traveling, but she says there is nothing quite so fascinating as riding in an auto. Last week he took Mrs. Solomon I. Millet to her first ride. Mr. Hamilton intends to give his friends all the pleasure he can while they are young.

District Lodge, I. O. G. T.

On Nov. 17th, the District Lodge, I. O. G. T., met with the Norway Anchor Lodge. The forenoon session opened at eleven o'clock. After transaction of usual business a bountiful dinner was served by the ladies of the Norway lodge.

At 1.30 the session was again called to order and nine members took the lodge degrees. There were eight lodges in the district, and one of the most pleasing features of the afternoon was the awarding of the banner to the Norway lodge for six months by the lodge inspector for being the best regulated order in the district, and for the efficiency of its officers, in the discharge of their duties. The session closed at 3.30 after having spent a most pleasant and profitable day in the interests of the temperance cause.

Act Quickly.

Delay has been dangerous in Norway.

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in times of danger.

Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly.

Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this.

Geo. H. Buswell, Marston St., Norway, Me., says: "About six months ago my kidneys became disordered and I began to suffer from dull pains across the small of my back. A languid feeling came over me, and I was unable to rest well. I also noticed that the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage although the flow was scanty. My body often bloated and I was also troubled with dull headaches. I read that Doan's Kidney Pills had rid other persons of similar troubles, and deciding to try them, I procured a box from Stone's drug store. They cured me and I am perfectly free from kidney complaint at the present time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

To the Eyes of the Girl I Love.

Here's to the eyes of the girl I love; They tell me true with a glad sweet smile. The sparkle of light of eyes above. There's something blue, my heart's beguile; Far from their gaze I'll never rive; They tell me true with a merry wile.

Chorus. Like glad some song, those bonnie eyes. They tell me true with a glad sweet smile. They tell me true with a glad sweet smile. They tell me true with a glad sweet smile.

Here's to the eyes that tell the tale. Of a pure sweet heart, 'er blithe and gay; A heart whose love will never fail; With sunshine, bright, they glow each day; They bring the bliss of joy's white sail. From 'er the bliss, they glow each day.

Among the clover blossoms sweet. Do you remember, love, the time? We tramped flowers 'neath our feet, While I besought you to be mine; Your eyes they glowed like twinkling stars. While I my love to you confessed; And standing by the meadow bars I said to them: "I love you best."

In summer's sunshine roses bloom. Come rich plumed birds with music gay. The robins sing, the thrushes sing. Shine brighter than the stars of day; Those eyes that speak of heart so true, Nay glow the same at all times.

No place in the skies of blue. May change the beauty there I find. THE DREAMER.

To an Automobile.

I have a humble longing that has never been confessed. A longing I have striven in vain to bury in my breast; I want to take a ride once more, when days are not so muggy.

Behind a little jogging horse in some old shabby buggy. I oft have lurked along the road in someone's machine. At such a pace I can't tell a brown field from a green one.

I want to smile on at peace, unheeding what And watch with joy an ancient horse flick and dig by. I never see a landscape now that is not sending in gales of wind and clouds of dust before my eyes.

The positive crows are galloping, the hens are squawking, and I know it will not last. I have no great ambition and I don't desire to shine. As a heroine of accidents in the automobile line.

This is my plebian longing, without quibble or remorse. I want that shabby buggy and I want that ancient horse!

Score One for Maine.

At the annual banquet of the Maine Society in New York at hotel Astor the 200 diners gave the explorer a ten-minute round of applause. Commander Peary's speech was a brief one. "I am not a native of Maine," he said, "but I have lived there practically all of my life except when I was in cold storage. If you will pardon introduction of the ego in my remarks, I would like to say to you all that I attribute to the rugged old State, with its stern, bleak scenery and its sterner ideals of manhood, the quality of perseverance in my makeup which finally enabled me to plant the American flag on top of the earth."

Story of Trapper John.

Was Well Known in Maine in the Early Days.

This story was told by the camp-fire by our guide in the big woods of Maine.

"Trapper John was well known way back in the 50's and 60's in these parts of Maine, for there was hardly a stream upon which he had not trapped, or a lake whose waters he had not fished.

And the hunting and fishing was some different in those days than today—plenty of game and no game laws, but well, you do have to hunt some for game.

"There was hardly a boy but what earned a good bit each fall and winter by selling fur, and a man like Trapper John, who made a business of it, could easily get a living.

"But Trapper John got more than a living, for in those days a living did not consist of many luxuries.

"John's father was one of the first settlers of his town, in the times when it took a strong arm and plucky courage to make a home in the wilderness.

"The story goes that when John's father first settled and built a cabin in the great woods he by chance, one morning, looked over across the hills five miles away; he saw smoke arising from another pioneer's cabin, who had lately penetrated the forest and made a home.

Turning to his folks within, he said, 'I am going to move today, for I am not going to have people sticking down right under my nose.'

"So in Trapper John was born and bred a love for life in the woods. He was famous in his day for his marksmanship, his skill in fishing and his great power of endurance in the water.

"At one time he floated from the head of Thompson pond to the foot, a distance of seven miles. At this time he remarked that there was not enough water in Thompson pond to drown him.

"His home was in the upper part of Oxford county and he had a wife and a family of children. By this time his fur trade had brought him money till he was comparatively rich for those days.

"When the daughters were his nearly young ladies Trapper John suddenly announced his intention to move, and to his neighbors' surprise, to the settlement at Bethel.

"A new house was built on the main street of the village, and was newly furnished and a piano was bought; the children attended school and entered the society of the town, but all the luxury that money and society could bring did not also bring happiness to the family.

"They missed the broad fields, the outlook over the hills and the miles of forest, the murmur of the pines and the flowing brooks. They had lived near nature too long to soon forget her. The freshness of the dewy morning had delighted them, they had all welcomed long, warm summers, and had braved the cold winter days, and been happy through the long winter evenings.

"So, one spring the last move was made when Trapper John and his family went back again to the old home they loved so well.

"But it is a sad ending to his life story, for his boat was vain in his youth when he swam old 'Thompson,' that its waters could not drown him. For, as he was crossing it one winter day he suddenly broke through the treacherous ice and was never seen again."

Before "turning in" for the night, we asked our guide if he never feared camping down anywhere for the night, in the great forest, and with an odd twinkle in his eye he replied, "perhaps I have some of the spirit of my grandfather, Trapper John, for I have never yet known fear."

And then we knew his deep interest in the story he had just told us.—[Maine Woods.

EAST STONEHAM.

David Keniston of Gilead called on Frank McAllister one day.

Merton McAllister went to Norway, Thursday, to work in the shoe shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lovejoy of Rumford are visiting relatives and friends in town.

School closed in the Bartlett neighborhood Nov. 20, taught by Mrs. Bertha McAllister.

Mr. and Mrs. Alby Grover of Norway visited at C. L. Chapin's, Saturday and the 20th and 21st.

W. H. Douglass of Auburn has bought J. Bartlett's apples, also Frank McAllister's. Clifford Eastman and Frank Coffin packed them. The farmers in this vicinity are getting $2 a barrel for ones and twos.

The last regular meeting of G. M. Knight B. C., held Saturday, Nov. 20, was an interesting and instructive one as four new members were added to our members, local women who desire to assist in this noble work. The pleasure was doubled by having present on this occasion Mrs. Blanche A. Merrill of Hecron, inspector for this district, who aided, encouraged and instructed us in the work. I believe inspection most important as it tends to keep our work up to a fixed standard. Refreshments were served at the close of meeting.

A Pleasant Way to Cure Catarrh.

Poor deluded victims! Continually aching and spraying and stomach dosing.

What are you doing it for? Trying to kill the catarrh germs? Might just as well try to kill a cat with fresh milk.

Stoking a piece of chewing gum in the upper left hand corner of the right ear would slaughter just as many germs.

You can't kill the germs that cause catarrh unless you get where they are.

You can get where the germs are by breathing Hyomel, the powerful yet soothing antiseptic, which is prepared especially to kill catarrh germs.

Just breathe it in, that's all. It gives joyful relief in five minutes. It is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, prop. of the Noyes Drug Store, to cure catarrh, or money back.

It is sold by leading druggists everywhere. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs $1.00. Extra bottles, 50c.

Cures sore throat, coughs and colds.

"I take especial pride in recommending Hyomel to asthmatic sufferers, as I know by experience that it is a remedy that cures. I have not since using Hyomel had any recurrence of asthma."

Mrs. Wm. Burton, Owosso, Mich., June 22, 1909.

Ex-Presidents.

Three were Assassinated—Some Died in Office—One Living.

President Roosevelt retired from his exalted office while a comparatively young man, and doubtless looks forward to a longer lease of life than has fallen to the lot of a majority of retiring Presidents.

John Adams, the second President, lived over a quarter of a century, after laying down the cares of office, but the average period of life of the Presidents after retirement is only twelve years and ten months. The list follows:

George Washington lived two years and nine months after retirement.

John Adams lived twenty-five years and three months.

James Madison lived nineteen years and three months.

James Monroe lived six years and four months.

John Quincy Adams lived nineteen years and served in the House of Representatives.

Andrew Jackson lived eight years and three months.

Martin Van Buren lived twenty-one years and four months.

William Henry Harrison died precisely one month after his inauguration, April 4th, 1841.

John Tyler lived seventeen years after his retirement.

James K. Polk lived three months.

Zachary Taylor died in office, sixteen months after his inauguration.

Millard Fillmore lived twenty-one years after his retirement.

Franklin Pierce lived twelve years and seven months.

James Buchanan lived six years and eleven months.

Abraham Lincoln died in office.

Andrew Johnson lived six years and four months after retirement, and served a portion of a term in the United States Senate.

U. S. Grant lived eight years and four months after retirement.

Rutherford B. Hayes lived eleven years and eleven months.

James A. Garfield died four months after his inauguration.

Chester A. Arthur survived one year and eight months after retirement.

Grover Cleveland lived ten years and seven months.

Benjamin Harrison lived eight years.

William McKinley died in office.

Quincy Adams died while a member of the House of Representatives, and Andrew Johnson passed away while United States senator. Mr. Roosevelt may also return to Washington as a senator, but whether he does or not the people of the country, regardless of politics or religion, will wish him a lease of life far beyond the three score and ten allotted to mankind.

BUCKFIELD.

Frank Chase has been seriously ill.

The Maine Fruit Product Co. has installed a new boiler.

Mollie Cole is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Anna Buck, at Hecron.

 giving sermon at the M. E. church, Sunday evening from Psalm 50:14. "Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the most High." The next preaching service will be Sunday morning,
 Nov. 28.

Nocturnal Inventions.

Mr. Stubb—This paper states that a genius should never marry. It says that a married man cannot invent things like a single man.

Mrs. Stubb (sarcastically)—Nonsense, John! I notice a married man never has any trouble inventing excuses about getting home late.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Strength of Mind.

Mrs. Outake—Your husband 'pears to be a powerful strong minded man.

Mrs. Harris—He shore is. I've know'd him 't read a patent medicine almanac from cover 't cover without feelin' that he had any uv th' symptoms."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Setting the Date.

"Have you any idea when the duke's marriage to Miss Richgirl will take place?"

"Well, some time within the next three months. He has a big note to pay which falls due in ninety days."— nee, died.

THE STOCKMAN.

Full husking has developed a poorer quality of corn even than was reported a month ago. The estimate of rate of yield is practically the same as reported in November, the crop averaging 2,550,000,000 bushels, but the percentage of corn fit for commercial purposes is the lowest ever raised. In general character the crop is soft, damp and immature grain, and the quality is so low that it dried out slowly and is keeping badly. It is particularly poor in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska.

The proportion of the crop which will be fed on the farm is far larger than usual, the reasons assigned being its unmerchantable quality, the scarcity of other grains, increased cattle and hog supplies and the inferior feeding value, necessitating the use of greater bulk to accomplish the same result. The crop is disappearing rapidly, and an unusually small part of it will appear in commercial channels.—
 Crop Report.

Character of Silage.
 The feeding value of silage is in a large measure due to its comparative richness in nutrients especially suited for the nourishment of cattle, its ease of digestion as compared with dry foods, its palatability due to its aroma and succulence and the fact that it aids in cooling the system and keeping it free of effluvia material and keeping the circulation active.

Stall Feeding Versus Grass.
 In some Virginia tests it cost nearly twice as much to make a pound of gain on cattle in the stall as where the animals were finished on grass.

THANKSGIVING PUDDING.

How to Prepare Various Kinds of This Dessert.

In the preparation of bread puddings the housekeeper should remember that, while bread in some form is used as the foundation, the other ingredients, such as milk, cream, butter, eggs, dried, fresh or canned fruits, spices and flavoring, must be added with a generous hand, for in this alone lies the difference between the insipid, watery bread pudding stuffed with a few lonesome currants and the delicious cabinet pudding which is considered the very acme of delicacy, says the Delineator.

It is also desirable, unless one is instructed to the contrary, to warm the milk after the bread is added, mashing thoroughly with a wire potato masher or similar implement while heating, and if skimmed milk only is available a tiny pinch of baking soda should be added to prevent curdling.
 Bake the pudding if possible in a china or earthenware dish that has been well buttered, testing it by thrusting a thin bladed silver knife into the center.
 If found clear upon its removal
 the pudding is baked.

Ginger Pudding.—Upon two cupsfuls of crumbed breadcrumbs pour sufficient hot sirup drained from pint pot of preserved Canton ginger to moisten, thoroughly beating with a wooden spoon to a paste. Then add one well beaten egg, the yolk and white beaten separately, two tablespoonfuls of powdered macaroons and half a cupful of the ginger cut in dice.
 Turn at once into an ornamental pudding mold that has been buttered and steam for two hours. At serving time unmold on a hot platter and serve with a hot, foamy sauce.

Chocolate Pudding.—To a quart of boiling milk allow a pint of grated bread, beating well before adding the other ingredients, then stir in one small cupful of sugar, three eggs and two squares of unsweetened chocolate, flavoring with a scant half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract and a little ground cinnamon.
 Pour into small custard cups and bake, set in a panful of hot water for thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven.
 Allow them to cool and then place directly on the ice until ready to serve, turning them out on individual dessert plates, resting on a lace paper doily. Garnish each with a star of sweetened whipped cream.

How to Wash Velvet.
 To wash velvet, make a lukewarm lather with a good brand of soap and wash thoroughly just as you would flannel. The water should be removed by pressure, as twisting is likely to produce a shaded appearance.
 After the water is removed the velveteen should be well shaken and hung in front of the fire with the right side toward the heat, which will restore the pile as the moisture evaporates.
 When it is dry place over a thick blanket and iron on the wrong side.

How to Clean Wall Paper.
 The spots, sometimes found on wall paper can be quickly and easily removed by making a stiff dough of Graham flour and boiling water.

Knead the dough thoroughly and break into small pieces. As each piece is used it should be doubled in on itself so there is a clean surface at each rub. When one piece is soiled throw it away and take a fresh one.
 Always rub the paper in one direction, and do not go over the same surface twice.

The Blessing of Health.
 "We don't value health nearly as much as we should."

"There are times when we do. I know I value it highly after listening to that old bore of a Binglewood tell about his numerous ailments."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Couldn't Feel Superior.
 "Mabel doesn't make much of a hit with the young men."

"No, she can't hold one."

"Still, she seems to attract them."

"Yes, but they soon find out that she knows as much about baseball as they do."

HARRISON.

Edward Payson Stanley.
 The San Jose (Cal.) Daily Mercury of Sept. 17 had the following notice of the death of a native and well known former resident of Harrison.

Edward Payson Stanley, Sept. 10.—E. P. Stanley, a widely-known and highly esteemed resident of Santa Clara, died this morning at his residence on Lincoln and Fremont streets, after a lingering illness.

Harrison in 1838, received a good education and taught school until his marriage with Clara Stuart in 1864, when they removed to Deerfield, Ia., where he engaged in agriculture and stock raising until 1880, when he came to California settling in Chico, Butte county, engaging in the lumber business in Butte and Shasta counties. His health failing, he came to Santa Clara in 1887, and was in the service of the Southern Pacific as baggage and freight agent for many years. In 1902 he was elected town treasurer of Santa Clara, running independently against a number of candidates and received a handsome majority.
 For several years he had the contract of carrying the mails to and from the depot.
 He was a prominent member of Liberty
 Lodge No. 289, F. & A. M., of Santa Clara, and the funeral will be held under their auspices. He was a charter member of the Bohemian club of Santa Clara and always took much interest in its work.

One daughter, Mrs. Julius Steinhart of Santa Clara, and a son, Curt B. Stanley of Goldfield, Nev., survive him. He was greatly esteemed by all who knew him.

THE LORDLY TURKEY.

How to Prepare the Thanksgiving Bird in Various Ways.

Prepare the turkey by cleansing, washing and trussing. Make a dressing of one quart of butter, one teaspoonful of salt and pepper to taste.

Roast or boil the chestnuts. If you roast them do not let them burn. Peel, mash and chop them. Work in the butter and seasoning and stuff the turkey as you would with bread dressing.

Of course you could substitute native chestnuts for the Spanish, boiling and peeling them, but the time required to get out enough meat to fill a turkey would seem to put the substitute out of the question, says the Chicago Tribune.

Boned Turkey.—With a narrow, keen knife take the bones out of a raw turkey. Follow one bone until you have loosened it along its length, keeping the blade close to it. Cut the nearest joint and pull it out, with the tendons attached to it. Then go on to the next.

Patience and dexterity will accomplish the task more easily than you imagine. Now fill the spaces left by the bones with a good forcemeat seasoned to taste. Sausage and mushrooms may be worked to advantage into this forcemeat with bread crumbs and mashed boiled chestnuts. Sew it up in muslin, retaining some resemblance to the original bird, and braise it upon a bed of minced vegetables, basting with good stock and keeping it covered the rest of the time.

Put under a light weight while warm and do not undo the cloth until the next day. Practice on a chicken before undertaking a turkey.

Boning knives can be procured, which make the tedious process easier. Turkey and Sausage Scallop.—Butter a pudding dish and fill with alternate layers of cold minced turkey and cooked minced and cold sausage meat, seasoning slightly as you go. The sausage will supply nearly all the seasoning you wish.

Pour in as much gravy or weak stock as the dish will hold. Let it soak in for a few minutes and cover with a mush of bread crumbs, peppered, salted and soaked in cream or milk, then beaten smooth with an egg and a tablespoonful of butter melted.

Cover and bake for half an hour, then uncover and brown. Serve at once, as the crust soon falls.

Hashed Turkey.—Heat in a saucepan the carcass and stuffing with water enough to cover it two inches deep. Cook slowly for two hours, strain and season with onion juice, chopped parsley, pepper and salt. Cut the meat into small dice and half a can of mushrooms into quarters and stir into the sauce. Heat to scalding, add the juice of half a lemon and serve.

How to Make Curative Salves.

Bitter Sweet Salve.—Scrape the bark from about a gallon of bitter sweet roots, cover well with water and boil down until a pint remains. Strain and add one pound each of lard, rosin and beeswax. Melt together and to this mixture add two pounds of mutton tallow. Boil all until thick, then pour into tin boxes and keep in a cool place. This salve is good for milk scald, scald head or eruptions of any kind that should be healed.

For Chapped Lips.—Take some marrow out of fresh beef bones, add a piece of white wax the size of a hickory nut, melt together, remove from the fire and add a piece of gum camphor the size of the wax and an ounce of glycerin. Stir until the camphor is dissolved. Add a few drops of oil of roses.

A Salve For Burns.—Stew together a pound each of lard, rosin and beeswax. When thick add two bottles of juniper tar.

How to Make Frozen Pudding.

For frozen pudding take one pint of milk, two cupfuls of granulated sugar, a scant half cupful of flour, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, one quart of cream, one pound of candied fruit, four tablespoonfuls of wine. Let the milk come to a boil, beat the flour, one cupful of sugar and the eggs together and stir into the boiling milk. Cook twenty minutes and add the gelatin, which has been soaking one or two hours in water enough to cover it. Set away to cool. When cool add the wine, sugar and cream. Freeze ten minutes, then add the candied fruits and finish freezing. Take out the beaters, pack in a melon mold in salt and ice for an hour. Serve with whipped cream.

How to Cook Chicken a la Creole.

To cook chicken a la Creole select a tender young chicken, cut it into the usual fricasse pieces, roll it in flour that has been seasoned with salt and pepper and fry it in fat until it is brown and tender. Keep the chicken hot while the sauce is making. For the sauce fry a minced slice of onion in two tablespoonfuls of butter and stir in a tablespoonful of flour. When all are nicely browned add one of the Spanish red peppers which come in cans (they are known as pimentos), two cupfuls of tomatoes, a bit of bay leaf and a piece of thyme. Stir until the sauce thickens. Then add the chicken and simmer very slowly for a few minutes.

How to Care For Ostrich Plumes.
A woman who believes it a good investment to buy handsome ostrich plumes gives her secret of keeping them free from moths when the feathers are not in use. She puts them in glass jars, securely fastened. If white tips she first sprinkles them with magnesia and wraps the jars in blue paper. This prevents their changing color at all.

THE THANKSGIVING TABLE.

How to Make a Feast For the Eye as Well as the Palate.

As Thanksgiving is a national custom it becomes us to treat it handsomely and make it not only a feast to the palate, but to the eye. Nothing can do this so well as the adornment of the table with flower and leaf and vine, making its appearance as charming to the view as its aroma is to the appetite, says the Delineator.

If you haven't a brilliant little scarlet poinsettia for the center of the table now is the time and place for the dash of ferns you brought in some time ago from the wet places before the frost had touched them to withered gold and for a wreathlike flat arrangement about it on the snowy cloth of the small leaves of the whortleberry (pressed immediately after plucking), with all its rich tints of orange and carmine yet unfaded. If, however, you are so fortunate as to have an akela vine anywhere on the premises you can have the preferable living green. This is a Japanese hardy vine, acclimated over here for perhaps a century, whose curious flowers of a reddish purple, male and female in one pendulous cluster, belong to the heats of summer, but whose small leaves are green and delicate even in midwinter.

But if you have gathered none of these things you can purchase a little pot of maidenhair fern and can lay the sprays around the centerpiece and up and down the table just before the guests are seated, as they shrivel so soon. You can hardly have a prettier effect than this in its pure green and white contrast, unless there is added to it a tiny boutonniere at every place, made only of a single bud, together with a leaf of the rose geranium or lemon verbena riched from those provided for the finger bowls. At such a table one dines without feeling as if he were satisfying only the material tastes.

How to Make a Sewing Bag.

Pretty new sewing bags are made of silk bandannas, finished at the top with a wooden stick which is run through a casing. These sticks are flat like those used in window shades, and the bags made with them is far easier to keep in order than are those pulled up by the aid of ribbons. Of course ribbons are used on these new bags, but they are run through bone rings which are sewed to the top of the casing.

These bone rings are a great improvement over those of brass, which were formerly used. The latter always became rusty at the seashore and never were neat and pretty like the bone ones. The bone rings may be purchased for about 8 cents a dozen, while the sticks may be procured for little or nothing. Have a hole punched at each end of the stick through which it may be tacked in place to the material, and then when the bag goes to the laundry the stitches may be ripped, the stick pulled out, and no harm will be done in the washing.

How to Trim Babies' Garments.

One of the favorite methods of trimming children's caps, sacks, dresses and undergarments is featherstitching, which can be put on in a variety of ways. A dainty way of putting on the stitches is to mark lightly with a pen a zigzag line up and down an even distance along the hem you wish to catch. Follow this line in the featherstitching, and the effect will be pretty.

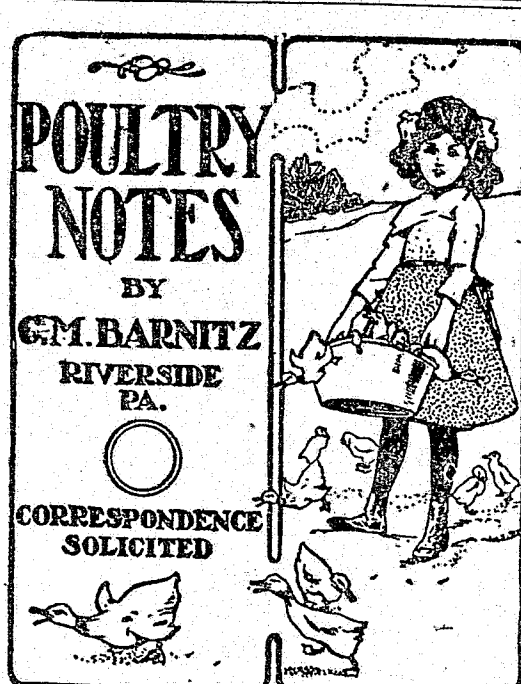

Another pretty way is to make a number of small circles, leaving a distance between them equal to the diameter of the circles. Now featherstitch the circles, and you will have a dainty finish to the garment. In the same way one could mark squares and diamonds as well as a long wavy line. One can never put too much work on baby garments of any kind, and of all trimmings featherstitching can be used to the greatest advantage.

UP TO DATE BROOD COOPS.

No, your hen isn't an umbrella. What a sight to see a poor mother hen trying to protect her babies from a fearful storm, while a big man who by driving a few nails could make her a water tight coop sits in his house in the dry!

Now, your hen is neither a mackintosh to turn water, nor is she a Mis-tou-mule to be hitched by a leg to the back fence, where she and her family are expected to grow up with the country.

No chain gang tactics in the hen-coop.

When you see a red headed girl, look for a white horse; when you see a red headed hen, look for a white egg, but when you see a poor mother hen hitched to an old, leaky barrel, look for a lazy, heartless human.

The pot has sung of the old oaken bucket.

That hung in grandpa's well, But why didn't he sing of the old oaken "barl"?

Where the cluckin' hen had to dwell? To chain pretty Biddy, who ought to be free.

Is a rep-er-hen-sible thing. And the fellow who does that trick today should stretch a hempen string.

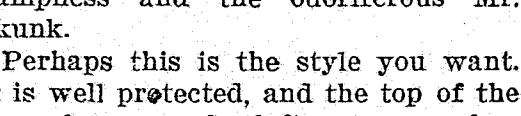

Broody Biddy isn't a tailor's goose. Weak and worn from three weeks' setting, she will do her best to raise her chicks, but she must be cared for.

and good lodging, feeding and sanitary precautions are necessary for Biddy and the babies.

Our A No. 1 coop is a dandy. Make it watertight and roomy, and on rainy days your little ruffle duffles may be confined comfortably and thus escape chills and the gapes, while the awning dropped at night excludes dampness and the odoriferous Mr. Skunk.

Perhaps this is the style you want. It is well protected, and the top of the inner box may be left open so when the hen is out for exercise the dirt may just be dumped and the box be cleared of lice and be dried in the sun.

A board floor, off the surface, insures dryness, and a roomy, comfortable, sanitary coop coupled with good breeding and good feeding will raise you birds that will give you a name to be conjured with in poultrydom.

DON'TS.
Don't put all your nest eggs in one basket. Advertise first at home and let the editor sample your spring chicken. The farther away from home you get the less orders your ad. will net.

Don't make "honesty the best policy" your motto, for lots of recalls use that when convenient. "Honesty the only policy" is the magic wand that brings clear conscience and success grand.

Don't worry the editor every time a high priced setting of eggs is a failure. He is not a "trustee of providence," nor does he keep his fingers on all the keys of the universe. Spurious advertisements occasionally slip into papers, religious and secular, for editors are not acquainted with all the rascals of the rogues' gallery any more than you are.

Don't advertise more quality and quantity than you have to sell. That is what ruined Mr. Ne'er-do-well.

I want a cord or less of all barnyard manure—will pay good price delivered at Round Pond. F. W. Sauborn, Norway, Me.

YOUR BEST FURS.

How to Keep Them Looking New and Fresh.

Keeping white furs clean is like keeping linens looking fresh, for both need much attention and frequent cleanings. Of course, if women can afford to have furriers do this work they need not be so particular about preventing their muffs, collarettes or capes from getting soiled, but when the cleansing must be done at home too much care cannot be taken to keep them clean, for the process of cleaning ermine, coney, Angora or any of the white furs, real or imitation, is a long, tedious one, that takes much strength. To begin with, they must be put out on a line and well sunned and aired for a day or two, then they must be whipped gently yet firmly with a rattan stick until no dust flies when they are pounded, says the Washington Star.

When the loose dirt is out the furs may again be hung on a line in the sunshine, while a bath of white sand and furrier's sawdust, mixed half and half, is heated in an oven. When hot the pieces must be put into this cleanser and the sand and sawdust rubbed well into the fur. The sand when hot loosens the grease and dirt from the fur and the sawdust absorbs it. If after one such rubbing the fur does not look as clean as is desired the process should be repeated. When the dirt is out the garment or muff must again be pounded with a rattan stick to get out the sand and sawdust.

Following this beating the fur should be placed in a pan filled with cornstarch or plaster of paris, which must be rubbed thoroughly into it. After either whiteners has been worked well into the pieces the furs must again be put out of doors and whipped with a stick to get out the white dust, for if not shaken or beaten the plaster of paris or cornstarch will rub off on the clothing, which is unpleasant.

With chinchilla little can be done toward cleansing, except a gentle beating with a rattan stick. And this whipping must be lightly done, for the skin is so fine and tears so easily that a woman cannot be too careful in the beating, and the best plan is to have them cleaned by a furrier.

Beaver, mink and many of the furs with heavy skins are cleaned exactly as are the ermine and other white pieces, with the exception of the final rubbing on of cornstarch or plaster of paris. The first beating to get out the dust, the airing and bath of white sand and sawdust must be given these furs to properly cleanse them. Pony coats may be successfully cleaned in the same way.

With the heavy long furs, such as Alaska sable, racoon and opossum, the airing and pounding with a heavy rattan stick are essential, but the hot sawdust and sand are omitted for the use of a comb with short teeth, known as a "furrier's comb."

Sables, like chinchillas, must be carefully treated, and the safest plan is to send them to an expert when they need cleaning.

How to Make an Excellent Desk Pad.
A desk pad that, with a little care and dexterity, can be made at home successfully was seen among some new things not long ago.

Two pieces of cardboard about 20 by 14 inches in size were pasted to gether at one of the longer edges, making what looks like a pageless book cover.

This was covered by a piece of flowered cretonne neatly turned at the edges and these raw edges covered by a piece of firm white paper which extended over the entire inside of the pad.

Two or more pieces of blotting paper were inserted and fastened by ribbons passed through both covers and blotting paper and tied on the outside.

A piece of ribbon of the same shade, but wider, was fastened so that it ran diagonally across each cover and, tying, held the leaves in place.

How to Make an Excellent Pudding.
Put in a mixing dish one-half cupful of molasses, one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of seeded and floured raisins or currants. Mix one level teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves and six cupfuls of graham flour and sift. Mix with molasses, milk and fruit and beat well.

Put the mixture in baking powder cans and steam. This amount will fill four half pound cans about two-thirds full. Put on covers and steam one hour.

Two one pound cans may be used if preferred, but pudding must be steamed two hours if larger cans are used.

Any good pudding sauce that is not too rich may be used.

How to Remove the Smell of Paint.
Every one knows that an onion has a distinct and unpleasant odor, whether cooked or raw. But every one does not know that this odor of an onion will draw to it every other disagreeable odor and clear the house atmosphere in a day.

The onion can then be thrown away, and with it goes the disagreeable smells that come about in a house that has been closed for the summer.

And this is also a good thing to know: That it will absorb all the odor from fresh paint and turpentine. If the house has been freshly painted and cleaned this month for the winter's occupancy the people moving into it will be miserable with the smells that come from walls and floors.

After the fresh country these odors will be unendurable.

One onion should be cut into small pieces and placed about the room in two or three saucers. Allow an onion to each room, and let the saucers remain there over day and night. If every bit of odor hasn't gone in that time put a few fresh pieces in for the next day.

NORTH FRYEBURG.

Lydia Heald.

For the first time for many months the death angel has again entered our midst, this time to the home of W. Abbott and taken Mrs. Lydia Heald through the Golden Portal to the City of the King, Wednesday, Nov. 17th. She has made her home with her sister, Mrs. Abbott, for some time. Every comfort, care and attention, a loving sister and family, and also a trained nurse, during her long and painful sickness, most cheerfully bestowed.

Mrs. Stephen Charles spent the day, Thursday, in Fryeburg.

Mrs. George Pitman and daughters of Canton are spending a few weeks in the place.

Agnes Chandler is working for Mrs. Will Thurston. She began her work, Monday.

Mrs. H. L. Hutchins and daughter, who are living at Fryeburg, were home over Sunday.

Anson Charles and wife, Mrs. Lilla Walker and daughter, Treasia, visited at Dexter Charles' one day last week.

John Stevens, Jr., John Chandler and Mr. Clough are spending a few days at Henry McKen's camp in Chatham.

Mrs. Frank Watson and family of Lovell, also John Gray of the Harbor visited their parents, A. E. Gray and wife, Sunday.

Mrs. Pillsbury and granddaughter, Mildred Verrill, spent the afternoon and evening with Mrs. D. H. Charles, Friday.

Arthur Bemis shot a fine deer Saturday, Nov. 20th. He feels very proud of it as it is the first one that has been killed in the town.

There will be a baked bean supper at Red Men's hall Tuesday evening, Nov. 30th. Supper served in dining room at the usual hour. Afterwards an entertainment in the hall, consisting of a farce, readings, tableaux, songs, etc., given by the Degree of Pooahontas.

EAST SUMNER.

H. W. Bonney has built a piazza on his house.

Ethel Bonney of Turner, is visiting her parents.

Robert and Frank Bryant of Brockton, Mass., have been visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Bryant.

Alfred Irish and bride were met with a shower of rice upon their arrival at their home, Nov. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Irish have the best wishes of their many friends. Mrs. Irish was Annie Cole of Buckfield.

The school taught by Helen Rowa closed Friday, Nov. 19, with an entertainment at the Congregational vestry.

The following program was carried out and everyone pronounced it very good, especially as the oldest scholar is only fifteen years old.

Music.....Flossie Eaton
Dialogue, a Party.....Mary Bonney and Hazel Palmer
Reading.....Mrs. Eva Corne
Dialogue, The Sewing Circle.....Dorothy Palmer, Lena Russell, Edith Cummings, Hattie Russell, Laura Bonney
Recitation.....Hazel Palmer, Harold Gammon
Music.....Flossie Eaton
Tableau.....Mrs. Eva Corne
Dialogue, Washington.....Dorothy Palmer, Hattie Russell, Lena Bonney, Harold Gammon, Lena Russell, Tolman Bonney
Recitation.....Tolman Bonney
Song, Red Wing.....Chester Palmer
Dialogue, Taking the Census.....Laura Bonney, Harold Gammon
Good Night Exercises.....Hester Bonney, Minnie Eaton, Hazel Tucker, Merle Gammon, Earl Russell, Carl Bonney, Harold Tucker.

This last was especially good as they were all little people. Some of the older scholars sang a song, "Good Night" while the little ones marched with their nightgowns and nightcaps on and candles in their hands. The song by Mary Bonney and Lionel Russell was sung in costume and they were blacked up. They are both only ten years old. Ice cream and cake were sold and they took $9.75. A sociable followed.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Dr. Frederick Cook at Central Park.
"Standing room only" was the sign hung out in the Casino last Saturday night, owing to the large crowd attracted by the "Dr. Cook reception at Copenhagen" feature film, and the twenty thousand Turkey Trot. Probably this is the largest indoor crowd handled thus far in the Casino, and Manager Leon Yeaton worked harder than ever to make the program run along smoothly and have everybody present enjoy the good things offered.

Several strong subjects in the motion picture line were introduced with the above feature and it is said that this offering was one of the best bills given for a long time. Plenty of comedy was sandwiched between the heavy subjects, so the large crowd were in good humor even if the lights did go out a few times. Mrs. Yeaton sang the two illustrated songs with Mildred Scribner at the piano.

Several hundred remained for dancing until a late hour with the music furnished by the Casino orchestra.
The refreshment booth, under the charge of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bassett, was well patronized and all have a good word for the quality of the goods sold. Lillian York sold admission and dance tickets, and had a busy time throughout the evening. Yet the crowd was handled easily without unnecessary confusion.

Androsoggin District, I. O. G. T.
Androsoggin District Lodge, I. O. G. T., assembled with Norway Lodge, No. 67, District Temple, J. H. Tuttle in the chair. The roll call of officers found present: District Temple, Sister Stone of Norway; District Recording Secretary, Sister Ritz of Auburn; Sister W. J. Walker, acting Past Temple; Old Sister, round of Lisbon, acting chaplain; Moses King, Jr., acting marshal; with an old army veteran as guard at the door. The marshal found in waiting four members of the subordinate, who were properly conducted and gracefully received the District Degree, and the routine business carried out. Refresh for dinner.

Norway Lodge set two rows of tables across the hall bountifully supplied and they were well filled with members, after which many baskets full were taken up. The afternoon session was called to order at 1:30. Acting Marshal Moses King, Jr., found in waiting five more members who were properly conducted and raised to the District Degree, after the business of the District had been disposed of by awarding the banner to the Norway Lodge.

High School Entertainment.

At the Union Depot.
"Have you a ticket to the 'Union Depot' the play the scholars of the high school are to give this evening at the Opera House?" was the question which many were asked during the week and by the way in which the house was filled last Friday evening before the curtain rose showed that if the ones who were asked did not have a ticket they wanted one for the Opera House was filled to overflowing with an audience eager to see this unique entertainment.

The curtain arose and there, as sure as anything, was the waiting room of a Union Depot. Maps, time-tables, railway bills, excursion bills and all the requisites of a depot were there, including Alton Whitehead, the ticket agent, who was occasionally obliged to hear whole family histories and learn of "Wading Birds" there were Don Whitney, the depot master, pretty good sized but very obliging and gracious to the ladies. His familiar voice was heard as the train bells began to ring. "This car for Buck's Dam, Frost's Corner, New Norway and Norway Center."

No Union Depot would be complete without its lunch counter girl and she was here in the person of Felma Wentworth. She did a thriving business, as well as the pop corn girl, Marion Bangs; business for them was certainly good as the travelers were intensely hungry. The newboys, Phil Young, Harry Lasselle and Joe Buck's Dam, Frost's Corner, New Norway and Norway Center."

The policeman, Percy Fogg, was present in his uniform of blue and kept peace. Merton Wyman and Ella Clark appeared under the name of Bus Man and Bus woman. Mrs. Martha Chattermuck, Beatrice Stevens, and Pearl Cook, came bag and baggage, bird cage, hen and all except the umbrella Maria forgot and left in the train. How Mrs. C. did scold poor Maria but she didn't seem to mind.

The scholars of the primary school came marching into the depot state in hand bearing the letters which "some one wrote on my slate, I L-O-V-E-U."

The little folks did finely and were obliged to return and repeat their song. The strolling Italians, Ben and Harold Moore, favored the travelers with a duet.

Aunt Amelia Saylittle, Lucy Barrows, was a heroine not to lose all her patience. Poor Joe said he would lose his. "I was 'wounded up' with questions and continued to quiz his poor aunt, who was so intensely absorbed in literature that she was almost hard of hearing."

Uncle Josh Hayseed, Raymond Brooks, and Aunt Sarah, his wife, Grace Brown, met with serious troubles traveling. Poor Josh said he would lose his. "I was 'wounded up' with questions and continued to quiz his poor aunt, who was so intensely absorbed in literature that she was almost hard of hearing."

Deacon Longface, Donald Partridge, dressed in a black suit and tall hat appeared just as three rollicking, care free school girls, namely Flo, Marjorie Barker; Lil, Helen Bangs; Pan, Marjorie Locke; appeared and the deacon, who was decidedly pessimistic in his views gave the young folks some of his advice. In a very eloquent manner but apparently to no effect on their young minds, and even the deacon, Hartley Greenleaf, seemed to make no impression on these frivolous girls, who were in for a good time.

Mrs. Garrulous, Minnie Upton, full of troubles and tribulations of her own, yet willing to bear other people's and gifted with a desire to know everything yet not at all inquisitive, was a character one often reads about but seldom sees. Her antiquated clothes and her quaint sayings as she interviewed the travelers caused an endless amount of laughter.

The country bride and bridegroom, Daisy Chase and Cecil Brown, accompanied by the bride's sister, Clara Hathaway, and her beau, Guy Stevens, came forming the wedding party. Their clothes were such as is seldom seen on a bride and groom and there was somewhat of a contrast between them.

The Drummer's Song by Harold Moore accompanied by six girls with dress suits and hats, and the bride, Marie LaFrance, "he held the baby," and the woman never returned. Here Mrs. Garrulous did her best but she wouldn't have any way to do with the child, and she flung the child into the depot master's arms and sped away for the train.

The opera singers, Prima Donna Geneva Starviant, Mrs. Frank Kimball, and the tenor, Florence Currier, were next on the scene. The Prima Donna, seeing the situation of Mrs. Needy, Ursula McAllister, and her three children, Marion Gibson, Eula Bicknell and Sarah True, who had funds to reach her loving husband, sang "Sing Me to Sleep."

Mrs. Kimball sang and a collection was taken by Joe Gamin and Clayton Heath for the poor lady, who sincerely thanked the singers and contributors.

Joseph Smith, the widower, George Felch, came with his four children, Theodore, Roland Nevers; William, Paul Brooks; Mary, Ruby Swift, and Susie, Ruth Cummings. Now Joseph was a good fellow and proposing to Araminta Fishwell, Ethel Brown, was done in as sick a way as one will seldom see, any way it was settled then and there and they started on their way rejoicing.

Marjorie Barker sang the solo, "So Long Mary," fourteen high school scholars joining in the chorus.

The Henpeck, Alton Frost, and Mrs. Henpeck, Gladys Buck, were off on a journey. Mrs. Henpeck was a good talker, talked so fast her husband could not fulfill all her orders, then received a lecture for not doing what she told him to do. He was well laden down with bundles and stood the talk well, although he did have to weep once in a while.

Mrs. Beacostreet of Boston, Dorothy Tubbs, had a session time with Mrs. Garrulous, the inquisitive, talking about making pickles, jelly, etc., till at last she was driven from the station by this meddlesome woman.

It had appeared Aunt Martha Ancient, the American Indian story, assisted by Helen Pitt, Mildred Kelley, and Aunt Maria Ancient, Olivia Libby, and Aunt Maria Ancient, Alta Poutte. Aunt Martha was nearly exhausted and needed a lot of attention. Helen Pitt was somewhat interested about this time in Harry Field, Aaron Yeaton, and unknown to either aunt they went and got married by Minister Rideout, so they said. Aunt Martha had, but revived after all in the station loaned a helping hand in fanning her.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a nervous and broken down condition of the system. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had done for other suffering women. I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My blood is now running freely, my nerves are stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Mrs. JOHN G. MORRIS, 215 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials from women who have cured their suffering from female troubles, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs. Women who suffer from these distressing ailments should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

The entertainment closed with a song by the college boys, Phil Haskell, Abraham Klain, Roland Kimball, Hartley Greenleaf, Cecil Brown, William Daniels and Harold Moore. Pearl Cook was piano accompanist.

This entertainment was given for the benefit of Class '10, N. H. S., and was a great success. Each one in the long cast of characters did finely. The entertainment was directed by Mrs. F. W. Wales of the Beck Entertainment Bureau of Boston.

A Thanksgiving Reunion.

Nov. 25, 1892, there was a "Kimball gathering" at the home of G. F. Kimball at Norway village. The ten sons and daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Kimball and the husbands and wives and grandchildren, met there for a family reunion on Thanksgiving day.

They had a little box of printed and it tells of this second reunion of the Kimball family. The first was at the old homestead on Aug. 6, 1848 and was the first time the mother had ever seen here all her children together at one time.

This Kimball family have long ago gone from Norway, but they are known by many of the Norway residents. A sight of their names will seem like turning back a page of history.

James Myrick Kimball, the oldest son, was born in 1817, and he married Arvilla Elliott of Rumford. He carried on the carriage business in Bridgton and Portland.

Eliza Ann Kimball married Richard Gage, and after her husband's death, lived with her son, H. W. Gage of the firm of Strout & Gage, attorneys at Portland.

Mary Kimball married Col. John G. Burns of Oxford. John Emerson Kimball married Martin L. Burr of Rochester, N. H.

Charles Porter Kimball commenced business in a carriage shop in Norway. Then had carriage shop in Portland and New York, and finally the largest carriage factory in the world at Chicago. He held many public positions among which was United States Consul at Germany.

George Franklin Kimball married Lucretia J. Morton of South Paris, and died in Boston in 1888. John Calvin Kimball lived in Atlanta, Ga.

Hannibal Ingalls Kimball married. He married Rosalie D. Brown, daughter of Titus O. Brown of Norway. He carried on a carriage business in New Haven, Conn. He afterwards was engaged in business in the south and resided at Atlanta, Ga., and afterwards in New York. He was Director-General of the Canton Exposition at Atlanta, in 1881.

Eunice Berry Kimball married George H. Strong and resided in New Haven, Conn. and New York. Eldra Nelson Kimball, the youngest child, born in 1840, resided in Boston.

The Passing of a Sect.

The Shaker society never was very large, numbering, in its palmiest days only 4800 members. The sect which had sunk in 1906 to 515, 406 of whom were females.

It is about 150 years since Ann Lee, driven out of England, arrived in New York state, preaching repentance and the immediate coming of Christ in the flesh form. She gained followers and established a community in that state. From the parent community 15 others sprang up, of which Maine is one. She originally had four communities, but two of them have died, and the number now in the state is said to be 75.

Two of the places in Maine in which the sect took root were in the towns of Poland and New Gloucester. It was in 1783 that an itinerant preacher of that religious faith appeared in the latter town, resulting in the foundation of the sect, which was known as the Sabbath-day Lake Community.

Three years previous to that date, a missionary appeared in the town of Gorham, and a community was established there. It did not prosper, however, and in 1819 moved to Poland and found a home a little south of Poland Spring.

Middle aged people can remember when it was a favorite diversion to travel from Gorham to the Shakers to hear the weird music and see the more weird dancing that made up a part of the service. The gardens and surroundings of the community showed a surprising amount of skill in the horticulture which they were many years in building, and which was scarcely completed, when, by reason of decreasing numbers they were forced to sell to the Shakers, who have since been known as the Shakers of True Believers in Christ's Second Appearing.—(Ledger).

The Wild Man.
Is a wild man always wild? John East says no, his contention being that one may stay wild during the fair season and then quiet down into a peaceful citizen again. John is peaceful, sure enough, as he hustles about all day and all night in pursuit of his several occupations, but still, he was about as wild a "Wild Man of Borneo" as was ever seen at a fair in this part of the country this

Maine an Indian Resort.

A party of Amherst College ethnologists, under Prof. F. B. Loomis, has made some interesting Indian "finds" on the Maine coast. Shell heaps uncovered by them seem to prove the coast to have been a great prehistoric summer resort at least 1000 years ago. On one part of the beach alone enough buried shell heaps were uncovered to indicate that perhaps 50,000 redskins were in the habit of coming from the mountains and forests in the interior of the State every spring and camping on the seashore.

For how many centuries the coast was thus used there is as yet no means of telling, but it is not improbable the sandy stretches were popular summer resorts 2000 years ago, at a time when Greece and Rome were at the height of their power.

In this connection it is interesting to note that scarcely any similar shell heaps have been found on the Atlantic coast south of Maine, which proves one of two things—either the rocky formation in upper New England has been especially favorable for the preservation of relics which once existed but have been swept away on the Southern sea coasts or the Maine coast was really a summer resort for Indians from all over the Eastern part of the continent.

The prehistoric shell and fishbone heaps generally ran from two to six feet deep. In some were discovered bones of the great auk, extinct in this region for centuries. No agricultural implements of any kind were found, nor any remains of corn. Instead were arrow heads and spear heads, harpoons with from one to nine barbs, fishhooks, awls and skinning tools. Scattered through the heaps were bones of the deer, moose, bear, foxes, wolves, mink, beaver, porcupine, marten, seal, goose, cod, haddock, lake, flounders, sculpin and cunners.

They were undoubtedly bones of many varieties of birds, but they could not be identified, because of the absence of the plumage. Enough was found, though, to make it clear that the American Indian, when he came to spend his summer on the cool coast of Maine, lived high and indulged in every luxury it was possible for him to command.

Human bones were found on Flagg Island, near South Harpswell, but no signs of cannibalism. The human bones were in one collection, and none had been split for marrow, as was the case with countless bones of the lower animals. In case of cannibalism, too, the bones would have been scattered.

More than 40 hammers were discovered, only one having been used with a handle. There were broken remnants of pottery, with more than usually elaborate designs. The markings had evidently been done with a stick rubbed at one end. The vessels were round bottomed, showing them for use in hanging over the fire. Prof. Loomis found a number of what he called "gaming sticks," with spots, probably used as dice. These prehistoric Indians were also fond of music and piped their way to the accompaniment of the sad sea waves. One of their musical instruments was a flute made out of the hollow wing bone of a goose, with four or five holes in it.

No Indian skulls were found, which is regarded as a curious circumstance. The aboriginal summer resorters had skulls, from which they fished, but they did not venture far from the mainland. Islands some piece out, like Mohegan, do not show the shell heaps.

It was estimated that there were 1000 of the heaps scattered along the Maine coast, with the probability that there were at least 50 Indians in each camp, a total summer population of 50,000.

The preservation of the bones in the heaps for so many centuries is partly explained by the fact that they were under masses of impacted clam shells which formed a sort of tiled roof and kept off the water. In sand or clay the lime in the bones apparently gained more lime than they lost.

The natives of today made much fun of the Amherst ethnologists for delving in the ancient shell heaps, and they called the college folks "loons." They gaped when they learned the shell heaps had given up 600 Indian tools, worth in the relic market from $2 to $10 a piece.

Make the Best of What We Have.

Can a man be a "true American" citizen if he devotes his time, talent and influence to the upbuilding of his immediate community exclusively?

The reduction of population in the rural sections of Maine has been largely due to the publication of letters prepared at the instigation or inspired by unscrupulous "boomers" that have enticed our young men and women away from that has taken hundreds of thousands of dollars out of our State to be used in the development of sections without a tithes of the natural advantages that is found in our own State.

Many a western and southern section has been boomed with Maine capital—money garded right here at home—and many a boom bubble has burst, leaving nothing to show for the tens of thousands of dollars that our former merchants and others have sent for investment.

It requires a peculiar grade of gray matter to enable a person to reason that if information regarding the crops of one section of a state that can be grown in other sections, are of doubtful value, that state then it follows that they will be equally benefited and interested in information regarding products of a far-off section of the country that have never been successfully raised within the State of Maine to our knowledge.

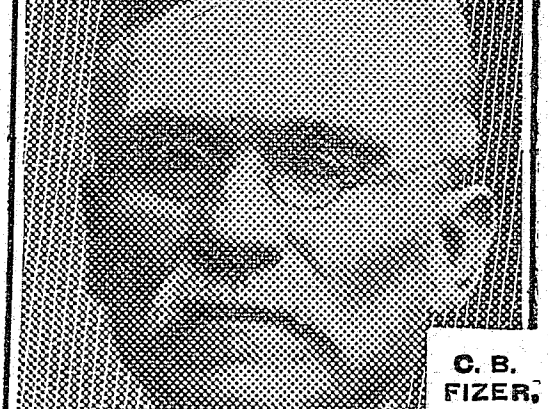

The man who tries to raise oranges, or cotton, or lemons in Maine will probably not make a success. Neither will a merchant sell many white or linen pants in the winter; nor many "cool" dresses. As a matter of fact there are no better places when all the advantages and disadvantages are considered, in which to get an honest livelihood, serve God and your fellowman and go down to the portals of death with a conviction that your life has been well directed.

How Bethel and Gilead Were Named.

Dr. Nathaniel T. True has left a short manuscript that reads as follows: "When the proposition was made to incorporate the plantation, Deacon Ezra Twitchell proposed the name of Al but Rev. Eliphaz Chapman suggested that of Bethel. About the same time the territory of Gilead received its name in the following manner: Peasey was a large proprietor and was desirous to have the place named Peasemont, but opposition arising, Eliphaz Chapman, Jr., son of the clergyman, who had located on a farm lot, agreed to give a gallon of brandy for the privilege of naming the place. This was accepted, and upon the suggestion of his father it was called Gilead." [Cited.]

BOLSTER'S MILLS.

Leander Dorman, a prominent citizen, passed away Friday night, aged 84 years. He was a native of Buckfield, but lived in Bolster's Mills for 40 years.

Mr. Dorman leaves a wife and seven children, 28 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. He has been a prominent Mason and was a charter member of Crooked River lodge and held office at the time of its inception. He also was a member of the grange and much interested in its work.

His wife, who is in feeble health, was Louise Barrow before her marriage. The surviving children are: Rena B. Drake of Squa Valley, California; Lucy Deering, Denmark; Alice Buck, Harri-son; Louis Dorman of Bowler, Cal.; Mabel Brett, Oxford; Geneva Barrows of South Paris, and Fannie Wight, Bolster's Mills.

Live Languages.

Systematic training of the youth in foreign languages, in the opinion of Thomas H. Norton, U. S. Consul at Chemnitz, is responsible for the rapid movement of Germany in capturing the foreign markets of the world.

Provision for the teaching of English and French is made in those public schools that correspond with the grammar and high schools of this country and the number of students taking the course is rapidly growing each year.

The effect of this knowledge of foreign languages, it is pointed out, in gaining and holding foreign trade is incalculable. In the United States foreign languages are taught and studied for "because they are." Few become proficient in these languages, and still fewer attach any practical or commercial value to the acquirement of a foreign language.

BETHEL.

Lewis T. Bryant. Lewis T. Bryant died the past week at his home in Foxcroft. The remains were brought Friday, to Bethel for interment. The deceased was born in Bethel, 58 years ago and passed much of his life in the western part of the state, where he was engaged in woodworking business. In 1901 he went to Foxcroft and assumed the position as superintendent of the MacGregor spool mills, which position he held at the time of his death.

Several weeks ago Mr. Bryant was stricken with a severe attack of pneumonia, but was thought to be on the road to recovery. Death was due to heart failure Monday evening. Besides the widow and daughters survive, Mrs. George Terrill of Foxcroft, and Mrs. Forrest Moore of Brewer.

Now that the days are shorter you will be doing chores sometimes after dark. Make it a rule never to set the lantern down on the floor. Hang it up where it will not be knocked over. It is an awful thing to have the barn burn up. By the way, a lantern suspended from the ceiling by a bit of old pump chain is a good thing to hang the lantern on. Hang it just above the reach of your head.

Advice to Women.

A Message from a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in salivary, mucous membranes, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping and itching membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces glow, roses and shoulders glow. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mrs. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucuo-Tone. Here is her letter: "I can strongly endorse the claim made for Rexall Mucuo-Tone as a cure for systemic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run down, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucuo-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucuo-Tone works through the cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucuo-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexion. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store, The Rexall Store, F. P. Stone, Main street, Norway.

The Red Hill school closed Friday, the 19th, for a week's vacation. Ella Walker, the teacher, returned to her home in Canton the 20th.

Tactless Salesgirls.

"The lack of tact shown by some of the salesgirls in the millinery departments almost kills me," said a woman who is very sensitive concerning her weight. "I don't see how they ever get anybody to take anything they have to offer. One of them brought out a tight of a hat for my inspection yesterday, a regular beehive; I would not be seen in it in a huckleberry pasture. And when I rebelled she seemed to be offended."

"You've got a round, full face," said she, "and if you'd do your hair different I'd do it as I please; I've paid for it."

"Now, nobody has to so much as hint to me that my face is round and full as it was. I've lost four pounds in the last six months. And as for doing my hair, I do it as I please; I've paid for it."

"But the worst was yet to come. When I told her that another hat she brought out was too staring, she said that people who didn't have anything else ought to dress showily. The elevator was going down about then and I took it."

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

Fifty Years.

Fifty years ago Saturday, Nov. 20, Daniel L. Brett and Julia A. Gorbam were married by Rev. Mr. Snow, at the parsonage at Norway.

The bride and groom held their reception in the Frederick Robie Grange hall. It was a lovely evening, and the hall was nearly filled with guests.

Daniel L. Brett was born in South Paris in 1838, and was the son of Seneca and Sarah Brett. There were six brothers and sisters in the family, three of whom are now living. Mr. Brett, one brother Cyrus, and a sister, Elizabeth Andrews of Norway, all of whom were present at the wedding.

Mr. Brett lived in South Paris until he was seventeen, when he came to Otisfield. Mr. Brett is a farmer by occupation; his farm is one of the best in the county.

Mrs. Brett was born in Norway, where she lived with her parents, Levi and Mary (Hall) Gorbam. There were eight children, five girls and three boys. They are all dead but one, sister Mrs. Ellen Paige, of New York, who was unable to be present at the wedding.

They have three children, Mrs. Sara Jillion of Green, Chas. H. Brett of Oxford and Eben Brett of Otisfield; they all attended the golden wedding. There also were seven grandchildren present, and six grandchildren and three great grandchildren who were unable to attend.

Willard A. Brett had charge of the literary and musical program.

The guests were served to fruit punch, oranges, bananas and pears. The guests registered, and the book is a source of enjoyment to Mr. and Mrs. Brett.

There was a table loaded with gifts of many kinds from relatives and friends. $47.50 in gold, $17.00 in paper and $2.50 in silver, were given to buy what was wanted most for them to enjoy.

The Bolster's Millie Grange gave them $25.00 in gold and the Frederick Robie Grange gave them a nice willow rocker and a nice morris chair.

Mr. and Mrs. Brett received 160 post cards and several nice letters to cheer them on their way.

Fiftieth Anniversary.
Their hearts are young as ever now though fifty years have passed. Since vows were made and words were said, that of the two made one. Together struggling up the hill of life's uneven way, their hearts are knit more closely till they're reached this golden day. Three children form their little band, and call them Father, Mother; their girl to womanhood has grown, their two boys big as father. Their hearts are young as ever now, a band of grandchildren runs; a little great granddaughter comes and stands with two great grandsons. They're known the bliss which joy imparts, life's raptures and its tears. But God has let their youthful hearts bring into ripened years. And now we wish them many more on earth with those they love, and when these pass, that they may find eternal bliss above.
Written by Ida F. Grover and read by her daughter Grace at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brett on Nov. 20.

WATERFORD.

The schools in Waterford closed last Friday for two weeks vacation. The same teachers will be retained except Miss Waldron at Mutiny Corner and Miss Frost at Temple Hill. Programs were given at Mutiny Corner on Thursday night and at Temple Hill and East Waterford on Friday night. Miss Plummer at the Waterford Flat School also invited in all the parents and gave an excellent exhibition of the work done in her school during the term. Miss MacIntosh will teach the school at Temple Hill during the winter term.

WEST PARIS.

The Universalist sale and chicken pie supper last week was a great success. The morning of the day opened with a drizzly rain with no promise of letting up, but contrary to all weather signs the afternoon was quite clear and the crowd that patronized the sale tables and supper was all that could be wished.

The sale tables in the church parlor were prettily decorated. The fancy work table opposite the entrance was decorated with hellebore and white and bore in silver letters the word Welcome. The candy table, with toothsome dainties, was in the alcove just before entering the parlor; next inside was the Larkin booth, prettily trimmed with Larkin banners and green and white crepe paper. On the opposite side was the apron table, and next the table of 50 or more dolls of all sizes and descriptions.

The supper furnished was of excellent order and about 175 people were fed. The chicken pies held out well but there were none to spare.

Finally, the Old Maids' Convention brought down the house. The entertainment opened with a trombone solo by Luther M. Irish and a duet by Mrs. Chas. Bates and Miss Stecher.

The farce consisted of 20 old maids dressed in old-fashioned costumes and make-ups that in themselves were very funny but what they said and did, the original take-offs, were more comical still and everybody enjoyed a good laugh.

The proceeds realized were about $125 with about $20 more when the Larkin soap products, which were delayed, are received.

Jennie M. Brown is visiting friends in South Paris.

Mrs. Mae Hadley of Marblehead is visiting Mrs. L. M. Irish and Mrs. H. H. Wardwell.

This is Thanksgiving week and home gatherings with thankful hearts are in order.

Mrs. W. S. Austin of South Paris visited with her sister, Mrs. S. T. White, Monday.

Arthur T. Flavin went to Boston this week, Tuesday, to visit his aunt, Mrs. Merritt, and have his eyes treated.

Mrs. Lee Rowe and Mrs. Mark Allen and son visited Mrs. L. M. Mann last week, Wednesday, and attended the Universalist sale.

Mr. Stanley of Lewiston came last Saturday to put in the furnace at the new grange hall. His little son, Clarence, is here with him.

A handsome Quincy and Rutland granite monument has been erected on the H. B. Tuell and Jacob Curtis family lot in the cemetery.

Mrs. Chas. Denham, who is sick with rheumatism, is at her mother's, Mrs. E. M. Emery's, is slowly gaining though only able as yet to sit up more than an hour or two a day. Her husband, who works on the electric in Portland, is going to spend Thanksgiving here with her.

The third and last church sale of the year, The Free Baptist Ladies' circle is doing a deal of planning and hope to have a good time. They expect to "hold forth" in the new Grange hall next week, Wednesday afternoon and evening. Should anything should happen they should need to change the place. Centennial hall will be the substitute. A calendar supper and first-class entertainment will be added.

Smokeless

Until science discovered a way to construct the Automatic Smokeless Device, and make it completely dependable, all oil heaters had one common great fault—smoke.

With the advent of the Automatic Smokeless Device, and its practical application to the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

the smoke problem was successfully solved.

The Perfection Oil Heater is the only heater equipped with this which insures a steady, full-glowing heat, with the wick turned up as high as it will go, without a shred of smoke. Reverse the motion, turn the wick down—there's no odor. The smokeless device automatically locks and prevents the upward movement of the wick beyond the proper exposure. That is the secret. This splendid result gives leadership to the Perfection.

You may now have all the heat you want—when you want it—and where you want it—without the annoyance of smoke or odor. Brass font holds 4 quarts of oil, which permits a glowing heat for 9 hours. Brass wick tube—damper top—cool handle. Cleaned in a minute. The Perfection is beautifully finished in Nickel or Japan.

RUMFORD CORNER.

Dr. James W. Stuart.

With the deepest regret we have to report the death of Dr. James W. Stuart, who passed to the Great Beyond, Wednesday night.

Though he had been sick about two weeks the end came very sudden and very unexpectedly, as he was recovering from his illness.

A kind, genial man has gone from among us and he will be sadly missed in this community where he and his family have spent 34 years of their lives. He leaves a wife and one son, E. C. Stuart of Andover and one daughter, Mrs. J. F. Martin of Rumford Point, two brothers and one sister.

The interment was at Rumford Corner cemetery, Saturday, Nov. 13th. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Barber of Rumford Falls and the Masonic services were rendered by Blazing Star lodge of which he had long been a member. Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters attended.

Miss C. Walker is spending a few days in town and has had the old frame house torn down which is said to be the first frame house built in Rumford.

Waterford and Norway Dairy Testing Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Waterford and Norway Dairy Testing Association was held in Norway Grange hall at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It was intended to have an all day meeting but on account of the Pomological Society meeting being held in Norway it was decided to hold only an afternoon session. The meeting was called to order by the president, L. E. McArthur, and the records of the previous meeting were read by Secretary W. K. Hamlin of South Waterford. The committee on purchasing of feed stuffs, appointed at a previous meeting, was called upon to make a report.

Previous to this report President McIntire made the statement that he believed arrangements might be made with some local dealer whereby a discount might be secured for cash from the regular retail price, providing the association as a body would purchase all their feed stuffs of that dealer, and Mr. McIntire felt this was the proper way to handle the matter. Alvin Brown, chairman of the committee, made a report stating that he had visited several grain dealers and obtained prices which he quoted at this time and which seemed to be very satisfactory to the members. After a full discussion of this matter in which nearly every member of the association took part, it was decided to draw up an agreement together with a proposition which they would present to the different grain dealers in that vicinity. A committee consisting of Alvin Brown, Norway; Benj. Tucker, Norway and W. K. Hamlin, South Waterford, was appointed to make arrangements according to the consensus of opinion expressed by the members and report at the next meeting of the association.

Mr. Noble, the official tester, made a report of the financial condition of the association, stating the amount already collected and the amount outstanding. It was decided by the association to keep the price charged for testing during the year at $1.25 per cow. This will enable the association to round up the year with a surplus in the treasury. Dairy Instructor Merrill was present and requested to give a talk on the agricultural conditions of the west. This he did very briefly, closing his talk with lessons in feeding. He learned from the cow test association work of the past year. He called the attention of the members of the association to matters of interest taken from their own association records. He believes that as an association during the past year, the members have been very successful in their efforts to profit during the coming winter if they should feed a wider ration. Instances were found where men fed as narrow a ration as 1.2. He believes a larger amount of roughage and possibly a smaller amount of grain would have brought more profitable results. Members should learn to measure the individuality of the animals in their herd in relation to the milk production. In order to do this it would be necessary to weigh the yield of milk daily and to measure the individuality of the members of their herd and determine whether they are receiving from them the limit of economical milk production. At this time Mr. Merrill was obliged to leave on account of taking a train to Augusta.

Christopher M. Gallup, editor of the Maine Farmer, was present and being called upon for remarks spoke very interestingly upon cooperative work, applying it to cow test association work. He fully believes that the dairy testing association work is a practical proposition resulting in great benefits to the state as well as to the members. Assistant Dairy Instructor Redman was then called upon and gave an interesting talk on the general lines of discussion already held.

The next meeting will be held at South Waterford the second Wednesday in December and will be an all day meeting. A picnic dinner will be served at noon.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Pomological Society was holding a meeting only a few rods away there were 43 members and friends of the association present.

Wheat Cleaned Six Times

"The equipment for wheat cleaning is as extensive and expensive as that for grinding purposes. The freedom of flour from dirt and bacteria shows in its appearance."

Prof. Wm. Jago, In National Association of Millers.

Wheat specially selected for William Tell Flour is stored in hermetically sealed tanks, at Ansted & Burk's big mills.

It is cleaned six times before grinding. Everything—even the sewing of the bags—is done by clean, bright machinery.

Note how much purer William Tell is than other flours. This means wheat cleaning by the most complete equipment known to modern milling science.

William Tell Flour has the brilliant bloom such as only Ohio wheat can make. Ask your dealer, and insist on having—
